

Map 16.4 Later states of southeast Asia: Angkor, Singosari, and Majapahit, 889–1520 c.e. Angkor was a largely agricultural society, whereas Singosari and Majapahit were more active in maritime trade. To what extent were these states able to take advantage of the trading networks shown on Map 16.2?

